

first aid for every China Policy text

China Policy style is designed for clean and simple online presentation. We aim for as few marks on the page. We drop some established rules, particularly punctuation and capitalisation. And, like all systems, we have a few exceptions.

- 1 titles and subtitles: lowercase, unless a proper noun
- 2 dates: number before month: 12 Dec 2020 or 12 dec 2020 or 12 December 2020; never December 12, 2020 never add -st, -th, or -rd
- 3 numbers and currency: write out up to and including ten, but numerals for 11 and up; C¥5,000 not RMB or CNY
- 4 spaces: always single, no double spaces after full stop or colon
- 5 bullet points: not preceded by colon or followed by semicolon or full stop
- 6 quotes: single ('like this') double quotes inside single quotes ('like "this"')
- 7 Chinese names: always followed by characters, Xi Jinping 习近平
- 8 affiliations: largest to smallest with no comma in-between e.g. SAMR Anti-monopoly Bureau
- 9 14th 5-year plan: never 14th five year plan, or 14th five-year plan, or 14th 5 year plan, or 14th FYP
- 10 exceptions: percent (one word) not %; 'and' not &, except R&D and M&A we use Australian spelling—similar to UK, with a few exceptions

-ize = -ise	programme = program
-ization = -isation	license (v) licence (n)
-er = -re	defense = defence
-or = -our	judgment = judgement
-og = -ogue	sulfur = sulphur

Please write here your choice of the most important policy news (three to five) on the date and explain briefly why:

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
4. (optional)
5. (optional)

2. For one of the following government announcement texts below

- write a clear summary of the announcement in 300 words; use bullet points when fit
- focus on the key changes and policy content, rather than rhetoric
